Seats for the Damrosch Opera.

At the Pembroke Arcade, at 9 o'clock this morning, will begin the advance sale of season tickets only for the performances to be given at English's the 16th, 17th and 18th by the famous Walter Damrosch Opera Company, which is the largest and most talented organization that has ever offered to give Wagner opera in this city, comprising, as it does, 190 people, the principal artists of whom were brought over from Germany. The works to be given are "Tannhauser." Thursday evening; "Die Walkure," Friday evening, and "Die Meistersinger" Saturday evening. The season tickets for the three performances, which are to be sold at a reduced price, will entitle the purchasers to free seats at the Damrosch lecture recitals at the Propylaeum under the direction of the Ladies' Matinee Musicale. There promises to be a heavy demand for seats, for there is great interest in Wagnerian music here, and the reputation

the Damrosch company has preceded it here. The business being done in other cities by this company is enormous. Notes of the Stage. Not so very long ago the writer called attention to the fact that theatrical managers never bothered themselves about cultivating the good will of theater-goers in the provinces. It was cited that no special inducements in the shape of souvenirs, which all women highly appreciate and which are used to commemorate certain performances in the larger cities, are ever given in the smaller places. It now seems that the managers of "Trilby" have taken the hint to heart-Trilby heart. They are going to set an example which cannot help becoming worthily popular. To-day's matinee is advertised as a souvenir matinee. Beautiful and really valuable, so it is claimed, little favors will be presented to every woman who can find, buy or appropriate a reserved seat coupon for the performance. Miss Mabel Amber, who has attained no little reputation in leading woman roles with Nat Goodwin and others and who makes a fairly good American Trilby, will be at the door this afternoon to welcome the matinee women and pin a sterling silver Trilby heart on the lapel each woman's boxcoat. Those who naven't bexcoats can have a souvenir just the same. Miss Amber is not required to make her entrance in the first act for several minutes after the curtain is up and she will be at the door along side of the blushing Mr. Eddy until the performance No one should be late at "Trilby," for the Bohemian spirit of the play, very shallow at best, will be lost unless one observes the action from the very start. Shubert's famous "Adleu" is played by Svengall and here with to-night's performance. "Slaves of Gold" will close at the Park with two performances to-day. Next week comes Hopkins's Transoceanics.

There is said to be some grumbling in certain quarters because Paderewski's managers are charging $3 for first-class seats in this city, while in other places the price is as low as $2. Grumbling and free speech are inalienable rights in America. One can't very well avoid grumbling when one has to pay $3 for a theater ticket, especially if one has been accustomed to getting in "dead head" for years. Some people never discover the public is being "worked" by theatrical managers until some people have had their passes canceled. These are the sort who for years have deceived the publie regarding the merits of traveling shows, slobbering over indifferent attractions and lauding to the skies mediocre actors. Let one of these lose his "entree" at the play house and he begins to fulminate about practices of managers, which he has been going on under the nose of the public for seasons. The critical opinion of any one who will thus admit e has sold himself for a pass to the theaters is not worth the paper on which it is scribbled. It is no more than the snap of a cur at the foot which has accelerate its exit from the door. Theatrical people who, of course, never like to have anything but the best said about their business, are known to respect critics who offer adverse criticism honestly, but neither theatrical people nor any other give a continental dash for those who can be bought with a free ticket. Without knowing who is responsible for the 33 Paderewski seats in this city, it is difficult to accurately place the blame. This is certain, if Paderewski's manager had said $4, then $4 would have been the price. Paderewski is not yearning to play in the smaller cities when he can make from $3,000 to $5,000 a night in the larger ones. Pader-ewski doesn't care a rap for Indianapolis, nor for the musical people of this city When we are anxious to hear such a celebrated virtuoso, the question is, can we get him? If Indianapolis were a rival of Cincinnati or Chicago, it could dictate terms to big amusement attractions. Until then the people will have to pay the differential. Theatrical maragers are no better than other business men and will take advantage of every situation. Managers are aftdollars. The advance sale points to a large audience next Saturday night to hear the celebrated planist.

Bishop White's New Idea.

Bishop White began last night a series of sermons intended to interest those people who are not connected with any church, The sermon last night was preached in St. Mission, on West Morris street. The sermons each Friday night will continue for several months. Properly speaking, what the Bishop says can hardly be called sermons in the common application of the word, for he simply delivers talks, instructive and entertaining, and the hearers can get from what he says their own

Extra Guard for Nonunion Men.

It is still necessary to keep a policeman at Chandler & Taylor's establishment, on West Washington street, because fourteen men who were discharged last May are still dissatisfied. The affair has ceased to be a strike. The men were molders, and several of the nonunion men who took their places have been assaulted. Yesterday an extra policeman was placed at the shops because it was feared that a fresh attack was contemplated.

Swooned in Court.

Mamle Roberts, the young woman arrested Thursday night for obtaining money under false pretenses, swooned in Police Court yesterday morning and had to be carried from the room. Her case was continued until next Tuesday. Her friends say she will be able to show herself innocent of the charge.

State Whist League.

LIKE A THIEF IT CAME

COLD WAVE SNEAKS IN AT NIGHT AND MAKES ITSELF FELT.

Official Zero Mark Not Reached, bu Less Truthful Thermometers Drop Below-No Change in Sight.

The cold wavelet which came from the north during the early hours of yesterday morning grew in size during the day, until last night every man, woman and child in the city realized that the predictions of the Weather Bureau had come true. Mr. Wappenhans, local forecaster, said it was going to get cold long before the wind veered to the northward, and while the snow yet melted and ran in streams in the gutters. While it was still warm and balmy, and a south wind, as seductive as any that ever blew in March, came from the southland, the cold wave flag stood out to the breezes announcing the coming of the north wind. People laughed when they observed the flag and minds reverted to the predictions for flurries of snow. Some were so heedless as to change their winter underwear for lighter weight, and these people who have no respect for indications are now bordering on the verge of pneumonia. The cold wave came quietly, like a thief in the night, and there were no flurries of snow, or cyclones or blizzards. The cold simply grew and grew in intensity until last night the mercury in the thermometer hovered a velocity of wind, direction and date, 23 miles, few degrees above the zero mark. Th birthplace of the present cold wave is not recorded. It seemed to be somewhere tion fell, 16. The thermometer up in that annex of the polar regions ranges all the way from 10 to 24 degrees below zero. Assignments of the cold came this way with each succeedevening the thermometer at the Weather Bureau registered but 6 degrees above zero. with bright prospects of the zero point being reached by morning. At 11 o'clock last night thermometers with honorable reputations registered 3 and 4 degrees above, while those thermometers whose reputation for truth and veracity are not so good registered as many degrees below the zero The Sidewalk-Cleaning Ordinance Bemark with no effort.

The weather office predicts fair, cold weather to-day. It is thought that there will be little change in the temperature, with odds on a lower mark being reached. This is consequently the coldest "spell" of the a favorable report for the ordinance as season, but not as cold by many degrees thorizing the Big Four Railroad Company as it was on several occasions of last win-

The gas supply yesterday was fair. Some people longed for more, while others had plenty, and but few were found who would acknowledge that there was a sufficiency The suburbs offered the most complaints, but people who happen to be on poorly nourished lines had received warning of what might be expected, and many were prepared for the worst. Many men, more women, will probably have fond recollections recalled this morning by having to cut kindling wood and bring in coal and wood from the shed, bringing back the days which were, long before natural gas came to the city. The gas pressure is weakest and lowest early in the morning, but during the day it livens, and by evening a marked improvement is observed.

Coldest Day of the Winter. CHICAGO, Jan. 3 .- To-day was the coldest of the winter, to-morrow will be worse and Sunday the worst of three, if the local weather man is anything of a prophet. Early this morning the mercury was around zero and during the day it crawled up to 10 above and hung there for a few hours. After sunset, however, the mercury concluded the bottom of the tube was the proper thing and it slid accordingly. At 6 o'clock it was zero, at 8 o'clock, 4 below, and at 11 o'clock 9 below, and all the conditions bearish. The signal service office predicts 15 degrees be low for the early morning and present cations are that he will win easily and have degrees to spare. The cold snap has developed the usual number of cases of destitution and suffering, and the police stations and relief societies are to-night overrun with applications for aid.

Cold in the Northwest. ST. PAUL, Jan. 3.-Although Helena, Mont., reported the official temperature at 7 o'clock to-night as being four degrees above zero, that was the only Weather Bureau point in the Northwest where the mercury went above zero. The next warmest points were St. Paul and Huron, S. D. both reporting ten degrees below. In this city, at 7 this morning, it was eighteen degrees below. Prince Albert, N. W. T., was the coldest to-night, registering thirty-six below. The Weather Bureau reports sixteen degrees below at Duluth and Cal gary; twenty-four degrees below at St. Vin-cent, Minn., Minnedosa and Edmonton; twenty-six degrees below at Winnipeg and thirty-two degrees below at Battleford. A keen wind has been generally reported.

comes a Bone of Contention. The Council committee on contracts and franhcises met last evening and decided on a favorable report for the ordinance auto construct and maintain a switch across Leota street. The committee on sewers, streets and alleys also met, the chief business being a consideration of the ordinance to compel property owners to clean snow from sidewalks within twelve hours after it has fallen, and the vetoed ordinance controlling the sidewalks along buildings under construction. Only a portion of the latter committee were present and they did not agree on the points of the two ordinances. There was a difference of opinion concerning the length of time property owner should be granted in which to clean walks and a difference of opinio relative to which two-thirds of a sidewalk a contractor should be allowed to use. Mr. Woody, member of the committee, was very much missed and the committee adjourned without deciding upon a report until the wishes and opinions of Mr. Woody can be consulted.

Within the Mile Square.

Mayor Taggart, the Board of Public Works and City Engineer Jeup held a long conference yesterday afternoon concerning the improvements to be made during the coming season. Mr. Jeup had maps showing the improvements which have been made and where improvements are needed. It will be the "policy" of the administration to finish up that portion of the city within the mile square as soon as possible Only a few sewers are needed in this section. The side streets and alleys are to be improved. It appears that the "policy" of the administration is in the nature of a blind, for extensive improvements in that portion without the mile square are being considered. The councilmen from the dif ferent wards will meet with the board very soon, probably on Monday, when the ques-tion of improvements will be considered The board desires to know particularly from the councilmen concerning needed electric lights and water mains in the several wards of the city.

Bidders Come Down. After advertising three times for bids for the superstructure of a bridge over Pleasant run at Meridian street the Board of Works yesterday received satisfactory propositions. The first time bids were submitted, the figures were all so close as to create a suspicion in the mind of Mr. Jeup, the engineer. The second time, a low bid was discovered after the others had been received and objection was made to the consideration of the bid which had been misplaced. Yesterday the following bids were submitted, the contract being awarded to the Attica Bridge Company: Variety ly dropped to near the zero mark. A high J D. Adams & Co., $4,875; J. B. > Board of Works Routine. The Board of Public Works yesterday took final action on the resolutions for paving with brick the east sidewalk of Stillwell street, from Madison avenue to the first alley south; for opening Raymond street from Shelby to Meridian to a width of fifty feet, and for paving with brick the east sidewalk of Meikle street, from Mc-Carty to Ray street. Resolutions were adopted for a local sewer in the first alley north of Gresham street; for brick sidewalks on Capitol avenue, from Twelfth to Fourteenth street, and for grading and graveling the first alley north of Weghorst street, from Wright street to the > first alley west. Right to Sell Dispensary. The Board of Works has asked the city attorney for an opinion concerning the city's power to sell the City Dispensary perty, which is regarded as a part of the Tomlinson estate. The Board of Health desires to have the present site sold and more adequate provisions made for a dispensary in some other locality.

> Funeral of Mr. Applegate. The late Bergen Applegate was a member of George H. Thomas Post, and the last meeting which he attended was on the occasion of the election of H. C. Adams com mander. As it is not the wish of the family to have any of the social organizations of which he was a member attend the funeral officially, the presence of those who were his intimate friends to pay respect to his memory will be gratifying. This fact was learned by the officers of Thomas Post. The funeral will occur this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, 661 North Meridian street.

Bowen-Merrill Company Changes. F. R. Kautz becomes manager of the retail department of the Bowen-Merrill Company by the reorganization of the company's forces. 'The British forces marched to the fron tier under the command of Sir George Colley. He had only two thousand men to fight the Boers. This number did not include the native cavalry under my command. Then began a guerrilla war, which resulted disastrously for the British troops. On the Drackensburg mountains the sol-diers were badly beaten three times. Then came the terrible struggle at Majuba hill during which nearly all the British feil rid-dled by the bullets of the Boers. A re-enforcement of 6,000 men had just arrived at the coast, but the news of the defeat at Majuba hill frightened Mr. Gladstone and he decided to recall the soldiers and end the war by giving back the Transvaal to the Boers. To this vacillating policy is due the present trouble and the oppression of the foreigners. The Boers think no one can beat them and they do not care about foreigners who wish to settle in the country. more troops had been sent, the Transvaal would now be under good government. The Boers acknowledged the suzerainty of the British empire, which did not allow them out the consent of the English government "Since that time the foreigners in the Transvaal have led a troublesome life. The Boers are a cruel race and they are always having trouble. They abuse and ill-treat the natives and a deadly enmity exists between them and the Kaffirs. The foreigners are now a majority, but the Boers tax them to death, put religious bars to their ever becoming citizens and will not allow them any representation in the legislature. There is a large percentage all in sympathy with the present uprising. The struggle is exactly similar to that in Hawaii, when the foreigners rose against an intolerable native rule. In the Transvaal the miners fill the treasury but they are refused the right to vote, and the system of police, mining inspection, and of education is a scandal. From eight thousand to ten thousand English-speaking children in the country are refused the means of education in a language they can understand. The struggle is not one between the Engcountry against a lot of ignorant farmers who will not move themselves or permit anyone else to do so. It is a fight for all David (I Chron. xxiv, 10), and readjusted that is progressive and intelligent in the after the captivity for the temple service S. A. FLETCHER & CO., SAFE DEPOSIT. at Jerusalem. His wife, also descended from Aaron, was in full sympathy with the spirit of this high office. They were both blameless, keeping the commandments and ordinances, the moral and ceremonial requirements of their religion (Job i, 1), patterns of all excellence. But this holy couple was greatly afflicted in one respect-they were | mission of Israel-it formed the connecting childless. (I Sam. 1, 2.) The years of wedded life had come and gone, and God had not granted the desires of their hearts. They were now advanced in years, having passed be summoned away, expecting to leave no one behind to bear their name, to inherit their blessing and to continue the work.

(Psalm xc, 17.) INCENSE .- A Jewish priest was consecrated to render three kinds of service-to ourn incense, to minister unto God and to pless the people. (I Chron. xxiii, 13.) The first of these services symbolized the offering of praise, thanksgiving and supplican. (Rev. viil, 3.) It was performed twice each day, in the morning and in the evening (Ex. xxx, 7, 8), at an altar, made of shittim wood and overlaid with gold, called the altar of incense. (Ex. xxx, 1.) That altar stood before the vail of the holy place. The mode of burning incense was described in the statutes of Moses (Lev. xvi, 12, 13), and any departure from that mode was severely punished. (Lev. x, 1.) The efficacy of this service is illustrated in the plague that followed the destruction of Korah. (Numb. xvi. 46-48.) Our lesson presents Zacharias, as he came, clad in priestly garments (Ex. xxviii, 40-43), to execute this function of his office. We cannot fix the te precisely, but it was in the days of Ki rod (Verse 5). and most scholars have

It was the design of God to combine the ceremonial and the spiritual, the official the popular, the former leading the latter Forms were vain and worthless unless used in the right spirit. (Isa. i, 12, 13.) When the smoke of the incense covered the mercyseat (Lev. xvi, 13), and arose thence and appeared above the holy place the assembly new that the ministers were officiating the appointed way, their faith was thereby enkindled, and they lifted up their hearts with the ascending cloud. (Rev. viii, o David worshipped. (Psalm cxli, This scene of our lesson is beautiful and impressive. It shows not only what Judaism might be in its true state, but what actually was at times, the channel of vine grace to good hearts. Morning and evening, day after day, the people gathered and God heard their cries, accepted their devotions, and bestowed His blessing.

VISITOR.-While this season of prayer was in progress a remarkable supernatural manifestation was made. An angel of the Lord, Gabriel (Verse 19), suddenly appeared standing on the right side of the altar of incense. Zacharias alone was present and saw him. Under the old covenant numerous appearances of this character (Gen. xix, 1) were made, whenever any great event was about to transpire. (Josh, v, 19.) The angels came always with messages. (Judges II, 1.) The earlier years of the Christian era were marked in the same manner. This occasion was most appropriate. The temple, the hour of prayer, the burning incense, the officiating priest. it was well to make known the new day soon to dawn. It is not surprising, however, that Zacharias was greatly excited as he saw the strange visitor in shining apparel, fearing that some judgment from God impended

TIDINGS.-Gabriel did not long leave Zacharias in suspense and fear, but hastened to deliver the intelligence which brought him from the heavenly to the of the Peace Blume has been identified as | earthly temple. "Thy prayer is heard, thy wife shall bear a son," he exclaimed. appears that, like Hannah, the priest had asked God for an heir. (I Sam. f. 2.) That prayer may have been prompted by the earnest longing felt by every plous soul in those days, felt always, indeed, by every normal man. Or, the Holy Spirit may have awakened in his mind some conception that his family would have important relation with the coming Christ. The angel went on to give the name if the son, John, derived from Jehovah and Chen, the favor of the Lord. (See Doddridge in loco.) Then he declared that the child would bring gladness to Zacharias and to many, implying that he would be a person of unusual worth and influence. Such words, falling from the lips of a celestial being, would be received with wonder. After all the patient waiting until hope had died out of his heart (vers 18). Zacharias was not prepared for such intelligence. It often occurs that long delayed answers find men unprepared for CHARACTER.-The angel sought to strengthen the priest's faith. Not every son brings gladness to parents. Sometimes the declining years are filled with trouble be-cause of wayward children. (II Sam. xviii, 33.) But Zacharias was informed in advance that the prospective son would "be great in the sight of the Lord," richly en dowed by nature, approved by the great searcher of hearts. Moreover, his persona babits on reaching manhood would accorwith the nobility of his nature. For, he should "drink neither wine nor strong drink." The spiritual would dominate and the carnal appetites would be in subjection (I Cor. ix, 27.) In short, he would become a Nazarite. Thus he would be lifted out of the great mass of humanity who live on the animal plane (Rom. viii, 7), made leader and an example to those who struggle for better things. (Gal. vi, 1.) But the exalted character of John would not be due to nature alone-he would be with the Holy Ghost" from his infancy Splendid prospect this. No lapse into way wardness, followed by reform. ents. The worth of this promised son, and the consequent rejoicing of Zacharias, will be determined largely by his position and work. The angel makes this known. "shall become a reformer, a winner souls." Many years, perhaps centuries had passed since such a man had appeared in srael-Maiachi or Zechariah may have been the last. Tells of Some of the Effects of Using Tobacco-Why the Habit is so Hard to Overcome - Oxygen Tobacco Cure is an Aid by Which You Can Free Yourself of a Pernicious Habit.

The expense of using tobacco does not consist alone in the mere outlay of money to buy it. The use of it costs health, happiness, friends, usefulness; it entails habits that are degrading and practices that are a constant regret and embarrassment. What can be more expensive than such traite? Not a man in the world can afford to indulge, not even a Rothschild or a Vanderbilt. They are things not condoned by the power of money.

When men begin the use of tobacco it is generally with the idea of a pastime. Many smoke a cigar to help while away a few leisure moments. Generally, the habit is contracted in boyhood, when the spirits are high, the vitality strong, and it can easily become an engrafted habit before it begins to injure, perceptibly, the health. When, in the course of time, that fatal nervousness begins to creep upon them, it is too late to call a halt, and daily they feel themselves going down, down, with no power to stop the fearful descent. It is like a man in a quicksand, slowly but surely the awful death

Oxygen Tobacco Cure proposes to help you stop this awful descent. It will act as the brake. All you need to do is to apply it and hold on and in a short time you will find yourself going back up the hill of your fearful down-grade. Your health will be better, your spirits lighter, and you will
